Earth Day 2015: Celebrate Spring!

Article Contributed by Walt Pickut

Trees are good for more than hugging!

A one-acre tree lot makes enough oxygen for 18 people to breathe for an entire year while consuming all the carbon dioxide an average car can make driving 26,000 miles.

Earth Day's 45th anniversary on Wednesday, April 22, 2015 has selected as its motto, "It's our turn to lead." One of its signature goals for 2015 is The Canopy Project whose aim is to plant a billion trees worldwide. It has been estimated that by the time a tree reaches 40 years old it has turned 2,000 pounds of carbon dioxide into thousands of board feet of good lumber. Earth Day isn't just the Industrialized World's way to make up for its excesses; it is the Developing World's investment in its future.

In 1970, San Francisco activist John McConnell and Wisconsin Senator Gaylord Nelson separately asked Americans to join in Earth Day, a grassroots demonstration to gather national support for environmental issues. Millions of people took part. The most common practice today is the planting of new trees.

In Western New York, the recent end of Maple

Sugar season dovetails nicely with the tree planting season as the Sugar Maple itself is New York State's official tree. The Maple tree planted this year will sweeten New York's attributed to Scottish town planner and social activist Patrick Geddes in his 1915 book, "Cities in Evolution."

With spring 2015 now unmistakably underway across Chautauqua County, local signs of city beautification, neighborhoods cleaning up and front yard flower gardens waking up, greet residents at every turn. City sidewalk planters are coming into bloom and suburban streets are beginning to flower. April is Keep America Beautiful Month.

Jamestown Community College will once again present its annual Earthfest in celebration of Earth Day from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday, April 22. The event is sponsored by JCC's Earth Awareness Club and the college program committee of the JCC Faculty Student Association. Weather permitting, Earthfest will be held outdoors the Hamilton Collegiate Center near the pond, otherwise, in the Student Union. It is free and the public is invited.

The Earth Awareness Club will conduct a tree seedling adoption, made possible by donations from the Chautauqua County Soil and Water Conservation District. Proceeds from the sale of fairly traded products by club members will be donated to environmental organizations, including the Honeybee Conservancy, the Dolphin Research Center in Florida, Monterey Bay Aquarium's rescue

JCC Earth Day Festival

Article Contributed by Jamestown Community College

Jamie Haight

Jamestown Community College's annual Earthfest to celebrate Earth Day will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on April 22.

The event, sponsored by JCC's Earth Awareness Club and the college program committee of the JCC Faculty Student Association, is free and open to the public.

Weather permitting, Earthfest will be held outside the Hamilton Collegiate Center near the pond. Otherwise, the program is held in the Student Union.

Earthfest features music by acoustic guitarist Jamie Haight, beginning at 11. At noon, Jeff Musial, a frequent guest on the "Late Show with Jimmy Fallon," will present a program with animals from Nickel City Reptiles and Exotics.

Earthfest also features various educational displays, the sale of ecofriendly products, nature photography, jewelry, plants, and educational displays by local environmental organizations, including live animals for interactive education.

A tree seedling adoption will be conducted by the Earth Awareness Club, made possible by donations from the Chautauqua County Soil and Water Conservation District. Proceeds from the sale of fairly traded products by club members will be donated to environmental organizations, including the Honeybee Conservancy, the Dolphin Research Center in Florida, Monterey Bay Aquarium's rescue efforts, and the Chautauqua County Humane Society.

Jeff Musial

JCC's Earth Awareness Club promotes an increased understanding and appreciation of the natural world and its creatures, wise environmental stewardship, enhanced knowledge of important environmental issues, compassionate living, and local awareness and action.

ONE OF OUR OWN

Jim Roselle

Jim Roselle was born on the nation's 13th "Tax Day", April 15, 1926. America has gotten used to both Jim and income taxes by now, but for Jim April 15 has been a case of "many happy returns" for 89 years. Happy Birthday, Jim Roselle!

"My parents were immigrants from Sicily," Jim recalls, "and they never learned to read or write, but their love for us and their strong work ethic are what made me, my six brothers and sisters, and America itself strong." Jim remembers a vibrant Jamestown, even in the years of the Great Depression, when the American Dream remained alive on every street corner and in every neighborhood where children played and grew up.

Franklin Street near downtown Jamestown was home to an enclave of proud Italian American families in those years. Just about every home on that street gave their city, their county and their world successful business leaders, educators, world famous physicians and dentists, legislators... and one broadcaster who has entertained and informed his world for 61 years from the same radio station, WJTN-AM Jamestown.

"My mother was my hero," Jim will tell anyone who asks about his own

Are We Having Fun Yet?

Should anybody be surprised that April is National Humor Month? After all, it started with April Fool's Day and probably went downhill from there.

If you're reading this in the office, though, then shame on you. Shouldn't you be working? Maybe doing something more productive with your boss's time? You know, fun things like spreadsheets, photocopying and answering emails you'd rather delete.

But sometimes it is hard to know what is funny and what isn't, especially when you are watching the news. Will Rogers once said, "Everything is changing. People are taking their comedians seriously and the politicians as a joke." So maybe it's time you started making your own fun on the job, at least this month.

Here are a few suggestions that might be fun to try. Or at least your co-workers will have fun when they watch you being carried out in a straight jacket.

- To signal the end of a conversation, especially with your boss, clamp your hands over your ears and repeat, "No, I won't grow up. No, I won't grow up."
- Walk sideways to the photocopier.
- Finish all your sentences with "...in accordance with the prophecy."

If your workplace is way too calm and sedate this month - for the silly reason that everybody wants to keep their jobs - you can easily liven them all up. Put decaf in the coffee machine for three weeks. Once everyone is over their caffeine addictions, switch to a good espresso blend. Stand back and watch the fun begin.

And here's one that's guaranteed to leave you some cake to take home at the end of the day. Bring a cake to the office decorated with the words "Find the Toenail."

And in case somebody you know still needs an excuse to add a little more fun to their workday, here are a few facts to help the medicine go down:

- One good belly laugh can relieve physical tension and relax your muscles for up to 45 minutes.
- A hearty laugh decreases stress hormones and increases production of T-cells, immune proteins and infection-fighting antibodies.
- Stress produces a hormone called cortisol which can be significantly reduced by laughter.
- Laughter produces endorphins in your brain which are natural, pain-killing hormones that feel really good.

But most important of all...you don't need a National Humor Month to take some fun along with you to work every day. You're special and a boring day at work just might be your own fault. So here are Dr. Seuss's famous 5 Lessons to make every day a little more fun.

1. Today you are YOU, that is truer than true. There is no one alive who is YOUER than you.
2. Why fit in when you were born to stand out?
3. You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself any direction you choose.
4. Be who you are and say what you mean. Because those who mind don't matter and those who matter don't mind.
5. Say to yourself, "Today I shall behave as if this is the day I will be remembered."

And while you are at it, enjoy the read, it's just what you need, indeed!

You Win Some You Lose Some

Contributing Writer
Joanne Tanner

My Daffodils and Tulips made it through the rough winter. They were already poking up six inches tall as the snow drift melted away. I knew they would be OK. Fall bulbs stay cozy all tucked away under seven feet of snow. But my hydrangeas, I'm afraid, pose the dreaded question. Have they made it through the harsh weather we've had over the last four months? That is exactly what everyone has been concerned about. We are only just finding out the answers.

It was a tough winter for all our trees and shrubs. Heavy snow has caused a lot of winter damage. If you're like me, I love these plants like they are my babies. Homeowners have been walking their property and voicing their concerns. I lost my first hydrangea three years ago. I planted it in the fall; it was dead in the spring – not from heavy snow, but maybe from the cold. In this event, even with an educated guess, I did not know why. I did everything right and still lost.

So I tried again and bought another lace cap Big Leaf Hydrangea called "Let's Dance", and added an "Invincible Spirit" Hydrangea that I won on face book. They were absolutely stunning last summer. Unfortunately the heavy snow we received in "Snow-ember" dropped them to the ground breaking all the branches. Knowing that this big leaf hydrangea sets flower buds on old wood,

(the previous season), sadly, I know I won't see it flower this year. I will need to trim what is left of the broken branches. I will patiently wait for new growth as the weather warms. I do not expect to see flowers again till next year on this variety if it made it through.

"Invincible Spirit" however, should be a different story. It is a Smooth Leaf Hydrangea and flowers on new growth every year. This specimen can be cut back to 2 ft. in the fall or early spring when new growth emerges. Branches were broken by heavy snow but I know it won't matter with this one. I can still trim it back to clean it up and see this shrub flower this growing season.

What could I have done differently to save my Big Leaf Hydrangea? For starters: the location of this shrub is along the driveway and backed up against the house. Since heavy snow and ice can cause a lot of damage to branches and trunks, it is important that plants be placed away from house eaves and other areas where snow or ice is likely to collect and fall or slide onto the plants. An A-frame placed over top of these shrubs would have been a wise decision to protect them.

As far as your trees go, pruning broken branches can be done now if you haven't done so already. It may take time but they will recover. If they don't it's just a fact of gardening. You win some you lose some, but the rewards when we do win are worth the efforts.

BPU Yard Waste Site Now Open on Saturdays

Article Contributed by
Jamestown BPU

The Jamestown Board of Public Utilities (BPU) Yard Waste Site opens for the season from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 18. Wednesday hours are not yet available at the Site.

The BPU Yard Waste Site is located at 1001 Monroe Street at the dead end of Monroe Street, off Eighth Street. All Yard Waste users will be encouraged to turn down Clinton Street, off Eighth Street, to access the site; directional signs are posted.

The Yard Waste Site is restricted to use by BPU Solid Waste customers only, as it is their solid waste rates that pay for operation of the Site.

BPU residential Solid Waste customers who want to use the Site must display a 2015-2016 BPU Yard Waste Site sticker on the rear driver side window of their vehicle. The window stickers are free-of-charge to BPU Solid Waste residential customers; however, only one sticker will be provided for each customer account. Residents will not be provided access to the Site without an approved 2015-16 sticker.

The window stickers are available at BPU Customer Service, 92 Steele Street, open from 7 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. weekdays. Once again, only one window sticker will be available per Solid Waste residential account. Contractors will not be permitted to use the site.

Use of the window stickers will allow BPU employees who staff the Site to identify BPU Solid Waste residential customers and assure that non-BPU Solid Waste customers do not use the Site, making the service more expensive for our own customers.

The Site will accept leaves, grass clippings and brush. Metal, lumber, wood, tires, drywall and other construction materials will not be accepted. Large items such as couches, livingroom chairs and mattresses will not be accepted, but pick-up with a fee may be arranged by contacting the Garbage Hotline at 661-1651.

A list of acceptable yard waste will be included with the sticker. For more information, BPU customers may call the Garbage Hotline at 661-1651.

Where Are the Consultants?

Recently I contacted a Direct Sales Consultant to order my products and I was sent to the consultant's personal website. Mind you, it was a nice looking website. However, I was wondering where did the Direct Sales go when you're ordering off a website. I was looking for the Consultants expert advice and help. It would have been appreciated to have product knowledge. Once the products arrived I never heard from the Consultant for follow-up or to thank me for ordering their product. All Sales and No Service... Is No Service At All.

Jim Lauderdale in a One-Man Show

Article Contributed by
Ken Hardly

It's hard to know where to start when introducing Jim Lauderdale. A tremendously prolific songwriter, both by himself and as a collaborator. Over 20 albums and, reportedly, hundreds of songs under his belt, this guy is a phenomenon. Every song, I mean every song, is a gem. He works incessantly and his presence is ubiquitous. He is a compelling performer and radio show host. around the industry the word is that he is a great guy, lots of fun, and a little "left of center" which is, of course, perfect for us. Rolling Hills Radio is devoting the entire show to him, an evening with Jim Lauderdale on the stage at the Reg Lenna Center for the Arts on

While In Their Joy

Contributing Writer
Pastor Scott Hannon

St. John's Lutheran Church, Williamsville, NY

If you were to encounter the resurrected Lord, how would you respond?

Would you fall to your knees in worship? Would you throw your hands in the air in praise? Would you bow your head in reverence or cry out in joy? What would you do?

In the gospel of Luke, when Jesus appears to his disciples, they do none of those things. There are no prayers lifted up. There are no shouts of praise. No one falls to their knees in adoration. They don't seem overwhelmed. Rather, when Jesus appears to his disciples scripture simply says,

"While in their joy, they were disbelieving..."
Luke 24:41

There seems to be a desire to believe, and yet, a reluctance to jump on board. There is joy, but it is filled with uncertainty. They see, they touch, they hear, but it all still seems too good to be true. In the midst of their joy, they are reluctant, hesitant and confused.

"While in their joy, they were disbelieving..."
Luke 24:41

Their reaction reminds me of how I felt on my wedding day. I was filled with joy, but I also kept wondering... "Am I really married? Are we finally here?" I felt the same way on both occasions my wife told me she was pregnant. It was immediate joy, mixed with fear about hopping on board until I was absolutely certain. I experienced that same joy and disbelief when my kids were born and when, after eight years of college and grad school, I was hired at St. John.

The thing about that feeling of joy and disbelief is it doesn't last very long. Disbelief is always vanquished by reality. In my case, I came to realize that I was married, my wife was pregnant, and I was a dad. In the disciples' case, they came to realize that their Lord who was crucified, dead and buried, had been raised to new life.

You may never see the resurrected Lord (unless you burn your toast just right), but you will encounter his presence and grace. In the waters of baptism, at the table of love, in times of prayer and scripture reading, and in moments of fellowship with God's people and creation we are told that God is there - that God is with us. At times, our response is bound to be like those first disciples... joy and disbelief.

We are told we are forgiven, yet we find it hard to believe.

We know we are fed, yet we wonder about this life-giving food.

We hear about God's love, but still feel unlovable.

We know there is something special about worship and church, yet struggle to fully understand what it is.

While in our joy, we are sometimes disbelieving...

But remember, disbelief is always vanquished by reality. The disciples' joy and disbelief eventually simply became joy. And in the same way, our disbelief will give way to complete joy.

You are forgiven.

You are fed.

You belong.

You are precious.

You are cherished.

You are not alone.

You are loved.

And so, if you find yourself like those first disciples staring at Jesus from arm's distance wanting to believe, yet reluctant to jump on board, fear not; He is Risen and You are Loved.

This news, as you will come to discover, is not too good to be true.

In the Way,

PSDH

Article Contributed by Lutheran of Jamestown

Members of the Edgewood Communities Book Club collaborated with Sue Seamans from the Falconer Public Library, and Thomas Warmbrodt and Ashley Harof senior students in the English Department of Fredonia State to participate in the Big Read. This year's book selection was The Great Gatsby, which was brought to life by lively discussions around the table and bridging the perceptions and ideas of generations.

"Our book club has been participating in the Big Read for seven years," said Jean Voltmann, book club leader. "Tom and Ashley asked us very challenging questions that made the discussions even more interesting. We've enjoyed their enthusiasm and fresh ideas." Two major discussion topics were how nativism and women's rights in the 1920's were portrayed by the author.

Sue Seamans, librarian, was instrumental in bringing the group together. "I love the idea of this project creating a conduit for promoting the love of reading and conversation, as well as connecting our local community with the university."

The Big Read is a program of the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) designed to restore reading to the center of American culture. Managed by Arts Midwest, The Big Read provides competitive grants to support innovative reading programs in selected communities. A 2004 report by the National Endowment for the Arts, found that not only is literary reading in America declining rapidly among all groups, but that the rate of decline has accelerated, especially among the young. The Big Read aims to address this crisis squarely and effectively. It provides citizens with the opportunity to read and discuss a single book within their communities.

Edgewood Communities is located on the Lutheran Campus off Falconer Street in Jamestown. Residents are age 55 years and older and enjoy an active lifestyle. ## One of Our Own road to success. "She understood love and family in a special way." Though Jim was born with foot and back problems that required delicate surgery in childhood, nothing stopped him. From table tennis championships and hoop shooting records to intramural football at St. Lawrence University where he graduated in 1950, Jim has always accomplished everything he set out to do.

"The Boys Club in Jamestown, founded by the Jamestown Rotary in 1939, and its first director, Mr. Robert Clements, was the best place for us boys when we were growing up," Jim says. "We learned lifelong lessons about sportsmanship, responsibility, loyalty and teamwork there." Jim was one of the club's first members the day it opened its doors. Membership was 25 cents a year, often proudly earned by the boys themselves.

Jim's now 61 years on the Air at WJTN in Jamestown appears to be unmatched by any other broadcaster in the world, to say nothing of his more than 1,800 interviews with world leaders, movie stars and Nobel Prize winning scientists which he has aired from Chautauqua Institution for the last 40 years. But Jim is equally proud of his hometown, on-air interviews with Jamestown's community leaders, neighbors and friends from his "Do Drop Inn" radio studio.

"Everybody is a story and every story is worth telling," Jim says. WJTN Radio and Jim Roselle are still making Jamestown a storybook hometown today. Happy Birthday Jim Roselle!

The whole story is also available in Jim's recently published memoir, "The Best Times of My Life: Sixty Years with a Microphone and a Cup of Happiness," available at selected local book stores, libraries and at www.jimroselle.com.

DEALER SHOWCASE

Market 430

Julia Steen, owner of Market 430

Article Contributed by
Juila Eppheimer

Sometimes life provides unexpected opportunities. Owning a restaurant wasn't what Julia Steen expected when she became a dental hygienist 20 years ago. Owning the convenience store next door certainly wasn't what she expected when she and her husband Bill opened Steener's Pub four years ago. But as of November 6, when Market 430 officially opened, that is exactly what happened.

"Crosby's decided this wasn't necessarily a location that they wanted anymore," Julia explained. "So out of the clear blue...they approached us and asked us if we had any interest in taking it over."

Originally, the store at 3018 Rt. 430 in Bemus was a local mom and pop shop, until Crosby's took it over many years ago. When the company decided they no longer needed a store at that location, they asked the owners of the pub next door if they would like it. "I would never have ever thought that I would have ended up here," Julia laughed. "It's all new to me."

The new adventure didn't faze her though; when the opportunity was presented, Bill and Julia had to decide quickly, so they took the offer and went with it.

"Opportunities don't really fall in your lap like this," Julia said. "So we decided to run with it."

And run with it they have. Julia and Bill are full of ideas to expand and improve the business. They hope to open up a deli counter with freshly sliced meats and salads, in addition to the specialty subs and pizzas that are already there. They would also eventually like to add a redemption center for the local people to recycle their cans. This summer, the Steens hope to have a small farmer's market out front, where people can buy fresh local produce.

They have already brought ethanol free gas to the station, which many people prefer to use in their boats, tractors, and snowmobiles. "There are not very many gas stations that have that," Julia said. "That's new, and that seems to be very popular."

With the park across the street, it is a great location for picnickers to come in the warmer months and buy subs. The Steens felt it was important to keep the convenience store where it is. "There's nothing else from Bemus to Jamestown, so the idea of this whole store closing would have been not good for us local people," Julia asserted.

Market 430 has become a place for local people to hang out. People sit at one of the tables in the coffee corner, reading the newspaper, or mulling over the riddle of the week. When they finally figure it out, or give up, they can turn over the back of the little chalkboard it's written on and find the answer.

That extra touch is thanks to one of Julia's 13-year-old twins, Alyssa, who came up with the idea. She and her brother Will have helped out at Steener's, and can be found over the summer months helping at Market 430 as well.

But it's not always work for the family of four. One of the things Julia loves most about owning her own business is the freedom to spend more time with her family. "It's a great opportunity because it's right next to our existing business, and I've got a great staff that works for me, that allows me to have some flexibility, to be able to spend some more time with my kids," Julia said.

Although this wasn't the plan when Julia, a native of Bemus Point, set out to become a dental hygienist, her husband Bill always had an interest in the restaurant business. "It was a dream of his to have an Irish pub," Julia said. "And the opportunity came up to with that building for sale and, four years later..." she shrugged.

Fours years later, Market 430 is open for business, from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day of the week. They are located at 3018 Rt. 430, Bemus Point, NY, and can be reached by phone at 716-488-2580. They can also be found on their Facebook page: Market 430.

Kiantone Congregational Church To Celebrate 200th Anniversary

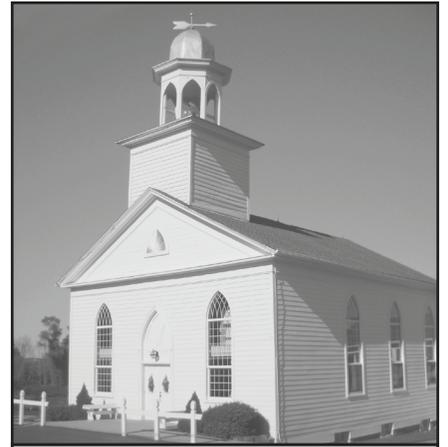

Article Contributed by
Kiantone Congregational Church

Two hundred years ago on Saturday, May 6, 1815, the Reverend John Spencer rode from "the Rapids" (now Jamestown) to meet with a small group of people gathered in a log school house on the Russell farm bordering Stillwater Creek in the town of what is now Kiantone. The meeting place was near the present day Stillwater Cemetery. The six people gathered here were John Jones, his son, Levi Jones, and John's grandson, Abner Jones, Samuel Garfield, William Deland and Anna Nelson Cheney, wife of Ebenezer Cheney. Mrs. Cheney had ridden five miles on horseback with her young son, Seth to attend the meeting. These six people became the founding members of what was then called "the First Congregational Church of Ellicott", now known as the Kiantone Congregational Church. The next day, Sunday, May 7, the Reverend Spencer administered Holy Communion and three more people, Mrs. Molly Wheeler, Mrs. Mollie Jones and Mrs. Samuel Garfield joined the church.

Over the next fifteen years, this group of dedicated believers met in members' homes and area school houses. The services were led by visiting missionaries and many times by the members themselves. In 1830, the present church building still in use today was constructed on land given by Ruby Cheney Sears. The building, modeled after the mother church in the Mendon/Milford area of Massachusetts, is in the typical, plain New England style. It had a gallery above the entry way which provided space for musicians and a choir. The windows were in an arched gothic style. High backed pews had doors on the ends to keep out any stray dogs that might wander into the sanctuary. The minister preached from a high barrel shaped pulpit reached by ascending eight to ten steps. Two wood stoves heated the sanctuary and tallow candles provided light.

Throughout the years the interior of the church has undergone many changes. In the 1850s the tops of spearheaded gothic style windows were enclosed giving them a square shape. The pews and the pulpit were cut down and a more modern style pulpit was installed. Candles gave way to whale oil lamps. The interior walls were papered and the exterior was painted white. A new tin dome with a gilt arrow was added to the spire. In 1875 more changes were made. Part of the basement was dug out to provide space for a furnace. The open gallery was enclosed making room for mid week prayer meetings. The organ and choir loft were placed on a raised platform in the front of the sanctuary and an alcove was added behind the pulpit. In 1934 the remainder of the basement was excavated to provide additional space for dinners, meetings and Sunday School rooms.

By 1972 more space was needed and construction began on a two story addition to the rear of the church where the horse barns had once stood. In 1973, the Geraldine Folke Hagberg Educational Building was dedicated. The addition included six Sunday School rooms upstairs with a large fellowship hall and modern kitchen on the ground floor. By 1976 the need for further repairs was noted. After some discussion, it was decided to restore the interior of the sanctuary and narthex. From September, 1978 to December, 1979 a crew of dedicated volunteers under the guidance of master carpenter, James Mitchener, Jr. spent countless hours restoring the church to its mid nineteenth century appearance. The dedication of the restoration took place on January 13, 1980.

This small white church in the village of Kiantone has been a place of worship and Christian fellowship for two hundred years. At times, when it was difficult to secure a minister because of limited resources, supply ministers would fill the pulpit and even the church deacons and trustees would step in to lead the Sunday morning worship services. During the winter of 1925/26, no regular Sunday worship services were held. However, due to the dedicated efforts of Cynthia Cheney Brustrom and Mary Whiting Houghwot, Sunday School classes were still held. At a time when women ministers were the exception to the rule, the church called the Rev. Esther Vodola who served from 1950-1954. Under her leadership membership in both the church and Sunday School increased.

The celebration of the church's two hundredth anniversary will take place Saturday, May 2 and Sunday, May 3. Saturday's events are as follows:

1:15 p.m. Presentation of the Rev. John Spencer by Traci Langworthy, Assistant Professor of History from Jamestown Community College

2:15 p.m. Piano recital by Dr. Amber Shay Nicholson

3:00 p.m. Old fashioned hymn sing led by Rev. Jon Swart, former pastor

There will also be historical displays, photos and refreshments in the Fellowship Hall from 1-4 p.m. Saturday.

On Sunday, May 3, the schedule is as follows:

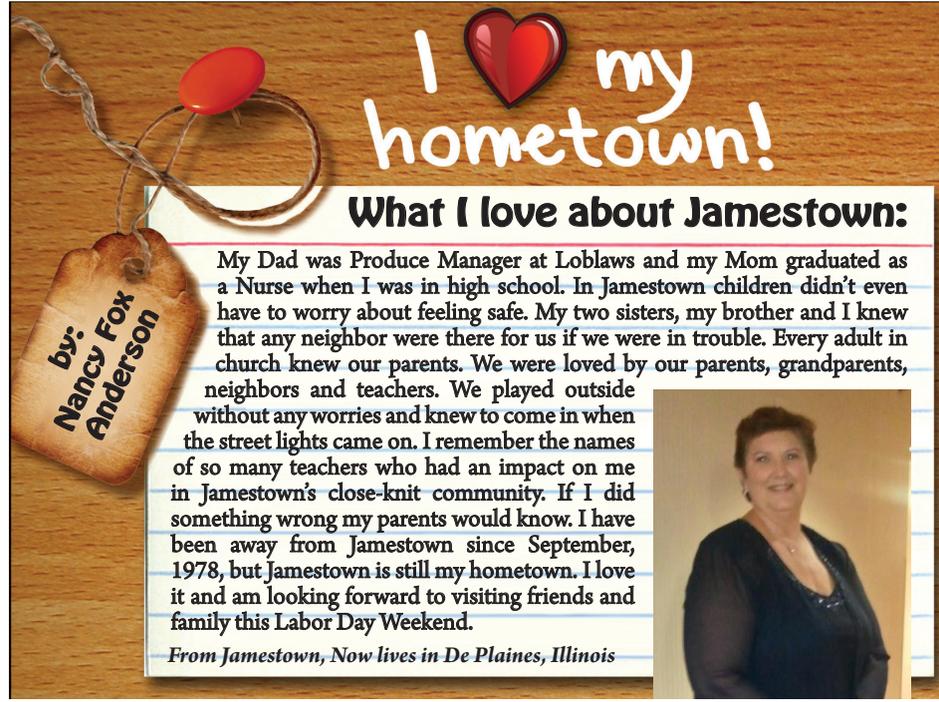

10:00 a.m. Sunday School

11:00 a.m. regular morning worship service

2:00 p.m. Bicentennial worship service with special speaker, Rev. Ron Hamilton from the Conservative Congregational Christian Conference.

The historical displays will also be available after this service.

For further information, please contact Loretta Smith at 664-9475.

I love my hometown!
What I love about Jamestown:

My Dad was Produce Manager at Loblaws and my Mom graduated as a Nurse when I was in high school. In Jamestown children didn't even have to worry about feeling safe. My two sisters, my brother and I knew that any neighbor were there for us if we were in trouble. Every adult in church knew our parents. We were loved by our parents, grandparents, neighbors and teachers. We played outside without any worries and knew to come in when the street lights came on. I remember the names of so many teachers who had an impact on me in Jamestown's close-knit community. If I did something wrong my parents would know. I have been away from Jamestown since September, 1978, but Jamestown is still my hometown. I love it and am looking forward to visiting friends and family this Labor Day Weekend.

Broadway Comedy Coming to Jamestown

Article Contributed by
Reg Lenna Civic Center

The Reg Lenna Center for The Arts will roll out the red carpet for a night of laughs from "Broadway's Next H!t Musical" on Saturday, April 25 at 8pm.

Similar to "Whose Line Is It Anyway?," this live show revolves around an unscripted theatrical awards show - The Phonies. Master improvisers gather made up, hit song suggestions from the audience and create a spontaneous evening of music, humor, and laughter. The audience votes for their favorite song and watches as the cast turns it into a full blown improvised musical - complete with memorable characters, witty dialogue, and plot twists galore. The cast of "Broadway's Next H!t Musical" will often use local landmarks, legends and controversies to fill out their show. Several local attractions, historical figures and the recent national news surrounding Celoron's Lucy statue may make their way into the show!

Rob Schiffman and Deb Rabbai, the creators of "Broadway's Next H!t Musical" are veterans of comedy, having performed with Chicago's City Limits, "CBS Early Show", Theatre Sports of New York City and Conan O'Brien and will perform in the show at The Reg.

Tickets for "Broadway's Next H!t Musical" are $15 and $25. Discounts are available for groups of 10 or more people.

The Reg Lenna Center for The Arts is located at 116 East Third Street in Jamestown, NY. The box office (716.484.7070) is open Tuesdays through Friday from 10am until 5pm and Saturdays from 10am until 2pm. Online ticket sales are available at reglenna.com efforts, and the Chautauqua County Humane Society.

True to the traditions of American education, Earthfest also promotes Earth Day's three Rs - Reduce, Reuse and Recycle. Earthfest features various educational displays, the sale of ecofriendly products, nature photography, jewelry, plants, and educational displays by local environmental organizations, including live animals for interactive education. Earthfest features music by acoustic guitarist Jamie Haight, beginning at 11. At noon, Jeff Musial, a frequent guest on the "Late Show with Jimmy Fallon," will present a program with animals from Nickel City Reptiles and Exotics.

Arbor Day

Arbor Day was founded in the U.S. in 1872 in Nebraska City, Nebraska when an estimated one million trees were planted in a single day, and it has been celebrated for more than a century in New York on the last Friday in April, this year on April 24.

Jamestown has been awarded the Tree City USA designation every year for the last 34 years and received its fifth Growth Award in 2014 honoring environmental improvements in its city forestry program, in a program sponsored by The National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the USDA Forest Service and the state forestry agencies.

Tree City USA provides direction, technical assistance, public attention and national recognition for urban and community forestry programs.

To commemorate Arbor Day locally, JCC will hold a special tree planting ceremony at 12:15 p.m. on Friday, April 24. The public is invited to attend the event, which will be held at the northern end of the Science Center grounds. JCC was the first community college in New York to be named a Tree Campus USA college and has maintained the designation for six consecutive years.

WNY Get Outdoors

The EPA and The Nature Conservancy are partnering on a photo project this April for Keep America Beautiful Month, encouraging everyone to show their love for nature by taking their very own #NatureSelfie photo. The goal of this project is to get people outside on Earth Day and connect with nature and share their love for our great Earth!

Jamestown Gazette readers can go to the #NatureSelfie website, <http://epa.gov/region02/earthday/> for details on how to take and post Earth Day photos of Jamestown, their favorite nature spots across Chautauqua County, Western New York and Warren County, PA. Send Earth Day selfies to news@Jamestowngazette.com, too, to win a spot and photo credit on next week's Jamestown Gazette Photo Page.

On the day after Arbor Day, Chautauqua County invites local residents and out of town guests alike to enjoy Tour Lake Erie Wine Country, an association of 25 wineries between Silver Creek, NY and Harborcreek, PA, with a Wine and Art Saturday on April 25th. Wine and Art Saturday is a free event from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. with artists on location at participating wineries to display, sell, and demonstrate their works - from paintings and sculptures to photography and glass.

Whether it is for April, Keep America Beautiful Month; Earth Day, April 22nd; Arbor Day, April 24th or for Wine and Art Saturday on April 25th, Western New York and Warren County, PA invite everyone outdoors to celebrate Springtime 2015.

Jamestown Kiwanis Club Performs Downtown Clean-Up

Article Contributed by
Jamestown Kiwanis Club

In recognition of the significant impact volunteer service has on communities, Kiwanis international held its seventh annual "Kiwanis one day," a global day of community service, on Saturday, April 11, 2015. The Jamestown Kiwanis club and Jamestown high school key club participated in a downtown clean-up. Recognizing that there will be many visitors to town before the city-wide clean-up in May, the club hoped to make some of the commonly visited areas a little cleaner and more welcoming.

Kiwanis one day is an annual event that unites the Kiwanis family and their communities in the spirit of service and camaraderie to make an immediate and measurable impact on communities around the world. It seeks to secure participation from the 600,000 Kiwanis family members involved in Kiwanis, circle k, key club, builder's club, aktion club, k-kids and Kiwanis junior in more than 90 countries. By committing a few hours each on this dedicated day of service, kiwanians around the world contributed to more than 1 million service hours in just one day!

Community service organizations and clubs like the Jamestown Kiwanis club help build relationships within communities and bring long-lasting and tangible benefits to members. There are so many ways for individuals and families to become involved and be a part of improving their community, including sports and recreational organizations, educational, arts and cultural, and/or social service organizations. It's never been easier to get on board and join others in revitalizing our neighborhoods, developing new solutions to community challenges and making the most of the area in which we live.

Kiwanis international is a global organization of volunteers dedicated to changing the world one child and one community at a time. New members are always welcome. For more information call wendy wilcox at 450-6874.

Jamestown Noon Rotary Inducts New Member

Article Contributed by
Jamestown Noon Rotary

Paula Holmes was inducted as a new member of the Jamestown Noon Rotary at a recent club meeting. Paula is the owner of Skin Sensations by PJ, located at 400 W 5th Street in Jamestown.

Ms. Holmes is a NYS Licensed Esthetician. Her salon specializes in state-of-the-art skin therapy treatments including Hydrafacial MD Skin resurfacing, i-Lipo - a non-surgical alternative to Liposuction, specialty facials, body treatments, Botox and fillers, LED light treatments, waxing services and Raindrop Therapy.

A native of the area, Paula is also known locally for her bowling and golfing abilities. Her sponsor, John Lloyd noted that her skills will be a welcome addition to the Rotary Club's golf committee, whose annual tournament raises funds for area organizations.

The Jamestown Noon Rotary Club is a local service club that assists the community through fundraising and service projects. The club holds weekly Monday lunch meetings at noon at the Robert H. Jackson Center.

The Babe Part 1

Contributing Writer

Bill Burk

"He wasn't a baseball player. He was a worldwide celebrity, an international star, the likes of which baseball has never seen since."

- Ernie Harwell (broadcaster)

The Little League baseball field at Celoron Park has a functional building along the first base line that serves the youth of Southwestern as a concession stand, storage area, and press box. It is aged and storied and dingy inside when closed up. It is also, I found out one fall afternoon, a place of mystery.

It's October of this year, and I'm at the wooden shack. I walk upstairs to the back of the building. I'm looking for an old uniform for a friend who wants to reminisce about the old days. The room is dark, and smells of baseball; spent uniforms, old helmets, catchers gear, socks, stirrups, balls and caps. I duck under a shelf and reach deep into a dark corner for a box labeled Lion League Uniforms 1975-79, blinking against cobwebs and years of dust. I close my eyes and reach further, feeling for the box. Except there's nothing there. I step over a duffel filled with helmets and stretch, and an uncomfortable nausea hits me like a hangover. My hand finds nothing, not the elusive box, not a single piece of baseball history, not even, in fact, the back wall of the building. A burst of air blows in my face, washing away my dizziness, but not the disorientation, a feeling that I'm somehow falling yet standing still. I feel rain. Rain? In the Celoron storage building? I push through the dark...

And suddenly, magically, out the other side, I'm transformed.

I'm in a white Flannel three-button shirt and heavy wool sweatpants, a tall brown belt keeping my shirt tucked and my knee-highs from falling to my ankles, standing beside a dirt road. Soft leather spikes on my feet, brimmed cap on my head. It's a baseball uniform, and it's heavy and scratchy.

"Come now, you're late." ...more to come.

I blink into gray afternoon sky. "What? Late for what?"

"The game, you lout. The game. First pitch in less than an hour."

I have no bearings. Where am I?

Where's the little league diamond, the musty storage building? I spin on my axis, a disoriented 360 degrees. Okay, there's the inlet, and the southern basin of Chautauqua Lake. Where's the Post Office, the Celoron Grocery, the log cabin? Where are the basketball courts, and the parking lot? Where's that sketchy Lucy statue, and the Moose Lodge? There are huge buildings and horses (Amish?), and a Model T car rally of some sort, and oh my God, is that a Ferris wheel? There is nothing that looks vaguely familiar.

"I'm Maltby", the man says pulling my arm, "the park manager, and you're late." He's wearing a belted, high-waisted jacket with wide lapels dampened from the rain. His pants (trousers?) are narrow, straight and short, socks showing; suspenders, herringbone fedora, and deep red sideburns and mustache. At my obvious confusion he hands me a fold of thick paper, ink smearing in the light rain. BABE RUTH TO PLAY HERE, shouts from the banner above the fold. The masthead says Jamestown Morning Post October 18th, 1921. Below that, HOME RUN KING, BOB MEUSEL AND PIERCY IN EXHIBITION GAME AT CELORON TUESDAY - DEFY LANDIS. Somewhere in the recesses of my memory a light flickers. I turn to him, "Late for what? What game?"

"Late for the game with The Babe."

My mouth turns into an "O", but nothing comes out.

The village of Celoron, New York is named for the French officer and explorer Pierre Joseph Céloron de Blainville. In 1749 Blainville set out from Montreal with 213 men by way of Lake Erie, headed south to the Allegheny River. His route took him along the shores of Chautauqua Lake where he buried engraved lead plates claiming all he could touch and see for France. The village is located in the western part of the town of Ellicott and sits on the banks of Lake Chautauqua. Water passing by Celoron from the lake through the inlet will eventually, and inevitably, gravitate via the Chadakoin to the Conewango, Alleghany, Ohio and Mighty Mississippi respectively, and deposit into the Gulf of Mexico. A comprehensive voyage where maybe a dozen names in 1921 United States would be easily recognized; possibly that of the current president, Warren G. Harding, maybe Charlie Chaplin, Al Capone, or Greta Garbo, but most definitely Babe Ruth.

"Come now. The Bambino is already at the field." Maltby again, and apparently I am scheduled to be there also.

First Round Matchups and Predictions

Contributing Writer

Cody Crandall

After previewing the start of the NBA playoffs several weeks ago, the first round matchups have finally been set in stone and play began this past weekend. If you had a busy weekend, and couldn't catch much of the action, here are the matchups and my predictions for each series.

Eastern Conference

No. 1 Atlanta Hawks vs. No. 8 Brooklyn Nets

The Atlanta Hawks have had an amazing season, and finished with a franchise-record 60 wins. But, they might get a good test from the Brooklyn Nets in the first round. Despite the fact the Nets squeaked into the playoffs on the last night of the season, they have a talented roster with players including Brook Lopez, Joe Johnson, and Deron Williams. But, expect the Hawks to come out on top in this one.

Prediction: Hawks in six games

No. 2 Cleveland Cavaliers vs. No. 7 Boston Celtics

The Cleveland Cavaliers are playing amazing basketball right now, and you know LeBron James will come to play since it's playoff time. The Celtics were supposed to be in rebuilding mode this season, but have gone on to have a great year. But, I will take my chances with LeBron and the Cavs.

Prediction: Cavs in five games

No. 3 Chicago Bulls vs. No. 6 Milwaukee Bucks

You want to talk about teams that have had a great turnaround this season? The Milwaukee Bucks had the worst record in the league last year! However, the Chicago Bulls are a veteran team that is battle tested in the playoffs. Expect them to come out on top.

Prediction: Bulls in five games

No. 4 Toronto Raptors vs. No. 5 Washington Wizards

She will also teach Introduction to Microsoft Office 2010 - Excel and Word in four sessions from 2:30 to 4 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays May 11, 13, 18 and 20.

In Excel, students learn how to work with and analyze numbers using a spreadsheet. They create simple spreadsheets, learn to use formulas, and create graphs.

In Word, they create and edit documents; learn how to cut, copy and paste; insert charts or tables; modify headers and footers; and create mailing labels.

Cline will also offer a single-session 3D printing class from 10 to 11 a.m. on

This is an interesting series. Both teams have athletic backcourts, and both teams can get out and run in transition. The Raptors lost in the first round of the playoffs last season though, and may use that as motivation. And Toronto has the home-court advantage which may be key if the series goes to seven games.

Prediction: Raptors in seven games

Western Conference

No. 1. Golden State Warriors vs. No. 8 New Orleans Pelicans

This is a matchup of big time players. Steph Curry of the Warriors and Anthony Davis of the Pelicans. The Warriors however, just shoot the ball too well for the Pelicans to hang around in this series.

Prediction: Golden State in five games

No. 2. Houston Rockets vs. No. 7 Dallas Mavericks

Dallas faltered down the stretch this season, and that got them a first round matchup with MVP candidate James Harden and the Houston Rockets. I don't think the Mavericks will be able to slow Harden down.

Prediction: Rockets in five games

No. 3. Los Angeles Clippers vs. No. 6 San Antonio Spurs

To me, this seems like a Western Conference Finals match-up between two heavyweights. The Spurs are the defending champs, while the Clippers are one of the hottest teams in the league to end the season. This one will be fun to watch.

Prediction: Clippers in seven games

No. 4 Portland Trail Blazers vs. No. 5 Memphis Grizzlies

The Grizzlies actually have home-court advantage in this series despite being the lower seed because they had a better record than Portland during the regular season. The key in this series will be if Portland will be able to stop the Memphis frontcourt of Marc Gasol and Zach Randolph. Personally, I don't think they will.

Prediction: Grizzlies in six games

Library Computer Classes 18 and 20.

Article Contributed by

Jamestown Community College

Prendergast Library will offer computer classes on a variety of topics plus several opportunities for individual help with resumes and technology during May.

Introduction to Computers will be offered from 1 to 2 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays either May 4 and 6 or May

This two-session introduction is designed for new computer users or those who desire a quick refresher. Instructor Jason Cline guides students at a comfortable pace through basics such as computer terminology, turning a computer on and off properly, and navigation. Catalog Basics from 1 to 2 p.m. Friday, May 8 will show people how to search the online catalog, find books in their geographic location, and place holds. Instructor Joanna Sorensen will also discuss how to search for downloadable eBooks.

Thursdays May 14 and May 28.

Participants learn about the history, mechanics and applications of 3D printing. Object manipulation in MakerWare and printing on a Makerbot Replicator 2 are also covered.

One-on-one help is also available from library staff members on writing or updating a resume and using devices such as Kindles, iPads and Google tablets.

Registration is not required for the introduction to 3D printing. To sign up for other classes or make an appointment for individual assistance with resumes or technology, call 484-7135.

Harley-Davidson

Article Contributed by
Julia Eppheimer

It's one of the most well known brands in the world. People who support this brand may even tattoo its logo onto their skin. They are passionate and loyal, just like the staff at the Harley-Davidson of Jamestown. Forty years after David Reid brought the business to the area, Harley-Davidson has expanded to house a service department, a parts department, new and used inventory, and clothing and accessories in their 36,000 square foot facility.

The new seven-year-old building is the latest expansion from the 3600 square foot space they started with on N. Main St. Extension in 1975. David came from a Harley family; his dad owned a shop in Gowanda, but David wanted to set out on his own.

"He didn't have any attachment here, he didn't have any family here," Brian Reid, Vice President and son of owner David Reid said about his father. "It just was the place that you could put a Harley shop." Since the local Harley dealer had closed shop, Jamestown seemed like a good place to come. "I think the area needed a dealer," Brian mused.

But with David and his family, the area got more than a dealer. People travel from all over to buy their bikes at the Jamestown Harley-Davidson. "A gentleman came here from Syracuse to buy his bike," Brian said. "My daughter picked him up at the train station... He travelled almost 150 miles to buy a bike from us because of the way we took care of him."

The Reid family is very much involved in the business. Even after retiring, David often calls or stops by to check on his employees. All three of his sons are involved in the business and some of their children and in-laws as well. They create a welcoming atmosphere where everyone is treated like family.

"He had two stores he could have bought from," Brian explained about the customer from Syracuse. The man had browsed their website and received a phone call from a salesman at the Jamestown store. "It was so friendly that it intrigued him... It wasn't just the fact that he found the bike that he loved, it was the fact that we took the time to spend with him, even when we didn't know him yet."

Another man found the bike he wanted online and decided to make the trip up to Jamestown as well. This trip was a little bit longer; he came all the way from Tennessee to buy his bike at the Jamestown Harley-Davidson.

The service at Harley-Davidson of Jamestown goes above and beyond most stores. They offer winter storage for their customers, where local people's motorcycles are housed next to the Reid family's antique bikes.

Their vintage motorcycles are just a few of the many historical items displayed throughout the store. Customers can relax in the lounge while they wait for their bikes to be repaired, or they can explore the museum-like displays around the building. From photos of former employees who became racing champions, to David's old 1966 Sprint CRS, to the old-fashioned Harley gas pump by the door, there are many unique displays to see.

Harley-Davidson of Jamestown is a full-service store. So while customers are exploring the antiques, the new bikes, and the full line of clothing, their old bikes will be repaired and touched up. Their Express Lane offers a convenient option for bikers who need a quick fix on their ride. For an oil change, a service wash, or a small part that needs replaced, customers can drive in without an appointment, and should be in and out in less than an hour.

For larger projects, there are seven fulltime technicians who work hard to keep motorcycles in great shape. "It's one of the more distinguishing features of our dealership," Megan Arnone, Marketing Manager said. "We have a rock star service department." In addition to the technicians, they have a service rider, service manager, a shop foreman and a fulltime detailer.

They sell both new and used bikes, though it's sometimes hard to tell the difference. Steed Merrill, the detailer, cleans and refinishes the used inventory to make it look like new. They also partner with local painters, who add "ghost flames" to the side of some of the bikes. These details are very faint when inside, but out on the road, the flaming colors shine.

The business has grown a great deal since David started it in 1975. This year, the staff has the opportunity to celebrate their 40th anniversary. In September the store hosts their annual open house to show off the new models of motorcycles. This year will be a two-day event, to commemorate their 40th year in business. The Wall of Death thrill show will be in town for the event, which is only one of many events that Harley-Davidson of Jamestown hosts throughout the year.

For more information on Harley-Davidson, their services, or events, visit their website at www.Jamestownharley.com or call 716-484-0113. Their 32,000 square foot facility is located at 1951 E. Main Street in Falconer.

HISTORY with PATRICIA PIHL

Show and Tell

Contributing Writer
Patricia Pihl

Everyone remembers bringing a treasured possession to school and telling their friends why they loved it so much. Why should schoolchildren have all the fun? Now everyone will have the chance to share at the second annual "Show and Tell" on May 20 at 7 p.m. in Prendergast Library's fireplace room.

Everyone young, old, and in between is invited to bring an item with a history and tell a story about it. Old photos, family mementos, and local history artifacts are just some of the things people have brought to Show & Tell. Perhaps it's an old letter parents wrote to one another during the war, or maybe a musical instrument passed down through generations. The possibilities are endless.

"It's all about the common experience of sharing a valued possession, while getting people to think about the greater importance of preserving life experiences and memories," states personal historian Patricia Pihl, host of the event. Pihl is founder of Real Life Legacies, whose mission is to assist individuals, families and organizations in preserving their stories in print format. Pihl is also the author of "Lost Places of Chautauqua County," which was published last year.

Anyone is welcome to become part of the conversation and speak about their item for a few minutes and answer any questions about it. Participants don't have to show and tell – they can simply look and listen. It's free, it's fun, and the stories will warm the heart.

Show & Tell—A Global Happening

Show & Tell events are taking place around the world in partnership with the Association of Personal Historians (APH), to commemorate May, Personal History Awareness Month. The mission of APH is to support its members in preserving and sharing the life stories of people, families, communities and organizations around the world. Show & Tell events offer a powerful way for generations to connect and preserve memories.
